

I'm not robot!

There's a buzz about the wikis this week. The October 6th edition of BusinessWeek Reports on the California Startup JotSpot premiere (software do you yourself for everyone?), which offers a wiki-based web service to allow non-programmers "To quickly write custom web programs to manage customer Support by tracking job applicants and gender things, and attach with new information were based on documents and text. The difference of JotSpot is that people build the Lego-style Web apps for themselves, according to the financial coverage of Yahoo! Investor's Business Daily reports that JotSpot Wikis will be sold as a hosted software application, integrated with email, real-time web news feeds and wysiwyg (what you are-is what you are -get) Editing and publishing tools. Gartner calls Wikis "Electronic Blackboards" that allow user groups to easily collaborate on online documents - and says they are getting more attention from companies. Similarly, BusinessWeek concludes its report by saying: "Even rivals are encouraged by the high profile [Jotspot] debut, regardless of success.), about the use of blogs to keep IT teams and management up-to-date in the implementation, yielded many comments on readers wikis in the Add a comment section. And the good wikis of Stowe Boyd appeared on CIO's sister website, Darwin. That's not a friend. It is not that kind of craps you expect, otherwise it would be something, but the program is not about anything. This was the best ending I've ever seen. I'm closing the final moments ago. Before watching, I told myself: "Oh God, I'm about to get so emotional in the end and I gonna miss those lovely characters so much". At the end of it, not only I didn't feel sad, but actually I was laughing so hard that all of my neighbors, even those three blocks away, noticed. I was laughing out loud at how they have been tantalizing me for several years. The whole show was it self a joke; it did not have any stupid testosterone-rising story. This way I will not miss Seinfeld . . . GREAT!!! "The Finale, Part 2eAAA is the twenty-third episode of the ninth and final season of Seinfeld and the 180th overall. This episode first aired on May 14, 1998. It was written by Larry David and was directed by Andy Ackerman. Plot Jon Hayman portrays the prison guard who escorts Jerry off the stage. eAAAAl right, Seinfeld, thateAAAAs it. LeteAAAAs go.eAAA Picking up where Part 1 left off, Jerry, Elaine, George and Kramer get lawyer Jackie Chiles to represent them. The trial is covered by Geraldo Rivera and Jane Wells, who report that the defendants have become known as the New York Four. At the Latham District County Court, the trial is attended by Jerry's parents Morty and Helen Seinfeld, George's parents Frank and Estelle Costanza, Newman, Uncle Leo, Babs Kramer, Jacopo Peterman, David Puddy, Mickey Abbott, Kenny Bania, Susan Ross' parents Mr. Henry Ross and Mrs. Ross, Rabbi Glickman, Matt Wilhelm, George Steinbrenner, Jay Cresspi, Stu Chermak, and Keith Hernandez and is presided over by Arthur Vandelay (George smirks at his name since he has used that alias very frequently in the past). Officer Vogel shows Kramer's video and Howie, the victim, tells his story. The trial gets bogged down when character witnesses such as Mabel Choate, Marla Penny, Donald Sanger, Lola, Dr. Wexler, Sidra Holland (who Jackie gets attracted to), Joe Bookman, Robin, O'Brien the Parking Garage Officer from "The Parking Garage," Detective Hudson, Leslie, George Steinbrenner, Marcelino, Mr. Hoffman, Fred from "The Pick," Justin Pitt, The Soup (whose full name is revealed as Yev Kassem), and Babu Bhatt tell their stories, leading the judge to finally call a stop for such testimonies in the interest of time. As Jã®Ri goes on the evidence, Estelle enters Judge Vandelay's office to make him reduce the punishment for his son, doing something for him. All the other are seen by killing time in different ways: Mabel Choate, Justin Pitt, Marla Penny, Marcelino, Joe Bookman, and some other people in the court corridors. Rabbi Glickman is reading something from the book to the parents of Jerry and Frank Costanza. J. Peterman, Keith Hernandez, Kenny Bania and Mickey Abbott is playing billiards for money at the bar. David Puddy is lying under a tankier using a tanning mirror on his face. Matt Wilhelm is trying to break a discussion between George Steinbrenner and a Garãsom. Newman is eating food in the car while lying on the bench. Yev Kassem is seen outside a building that serves a part of her soup for Babu Bhatt, Robin, Mr. Lippman and Poppie. When poppie is seen asking for salt for your soup, Yev Kassem makes your gesture "no soup for you" and takes off your soup and tablespoon. Henry Ross is seen buying a gun. Jackie! Chiles come out with sidra to that he receives a call that the jã®i came to verdict. The next day, he is determined that the New York Four is guilty and will spend a year in the prison. As everyone starts leaving, Elaine says David not waiting for her to what he says "that's fine." Frank tries to wake up from his fainting so that they can beat the shaking like Uncle Leo Consola Babs. Before leaving with sidra, Jackie Chiles tells the four that he may have lost the case, but he was pleased with sidra. He adds, "And the proportion: they are real, and they are spectacular!" After the four are taken to a retention cell, Jerry and George reprise their conversation on a button on the shirt of "the seinfeld chronicles", the final sceneby Jerry conducting an act of eating for prisoners in the prison of Latham County. Kramer is the sake of his jokes, as the rest of the prisoners bothers him. One of the haters (dubbed by Larry David) shouts to Jerry: "You are a pion! The guard of the prism (played by Jon Hayman) escorts Jerry behind the scenes, saying "Okay, Seinfeld, that's it. Let's go." Jerry calls the bullshit: "You were so! I see you in the cafeteria!" While the pill mockens and Kramer gives him a pimp ovation, ending the show. Characters witnessing against New York Four The following characters witness against New York four when called to the booth by prosecutor Hoyt in order of appearance: there were also others who witnessed in deleted scenes: Arnold Deensfrei, Mr. Lippman Ramon Poppie Notes about nothing, this is the fifth most watched television final of all time. It cost $ 1,000,000 to have a commercial in this episode. When this episode originally aired on the NBC, another television statement that usually showed clinical programs, TV Land, paid tribute to no programming any shows in front of him, just showing a picture still Closed with a written note that said "We are TV fan, then ... We are watching the last seinfeld episode. Criticized by many for portraying the main characters as mothers without respect for society and to mock the pill that tuned to watch them every week. The west coast of the US at the end of Seinfeld coincided with the death of Frank Sinatra. Sinatra Ambulance was able to reach the center of Cedars-Sinai in 10 minutes in a very light caring, because many in Los Angeles are in closed environments to watch the show. The conversation in the prism, about the "second botan is the most important", is exactly the conversation that begins the pilot episode. that makes george george "Haven't we had this conversation before?" To this, Jerry responds, "Yeah, I think we have." This is the only Seinfeld episode to bear the Seinfeld URL during the Castle Rock logo. Elaine is the only character not to be in the pilot episode and the last scene (since there were no longer any co-ed prisons by this time, and she could not have logically been present in a men's prison). Before NBC announced it was officially ending the sitcom of Seinfeld, it was close to achieving the title of longest-running prime-time TV sitcom, which is currently held by ABC/CBS Family Matters. A wiki is a collaborative website that houses the perpetual collective work of many authors. Wikis are created using a type of specialized content management system (CMS) that can be customized to control different wiki elements, like user roles, access permissions, approval processes, and page structure. Wikis vs. blogs Wikis are similar to blogs in structure and logic, in that individual users can add, delete, or modify any wiki content regardless of who originally published it. Wiki administrators can review changes, but most content on public wikis is generally unmoderated.Á Unlike blogs, however, most wikis do not attribute any page to an individual author or set of authors. Instead, they are intended to serve as an aggregate source of general knowledge. The lack of author attribution sometimes calls into question the reliability or credibility of the information found on a wiki, especially if there are no other sources cited. For example, anonymous users frequently target Wikipedia pages with content modifications that are tied to political propaganda, misleading clickbait headlines, or individual opinions rather than objective facts. For this reason, Wikipedia is often frowned upon as a source in academia. How are wikis used? Wikis can be either public-facing or reserved for internal use only. Internal wikis are typically used as a .notroN .notroN itiaK rop odazilauta iof ogitra etsE :meulcni seralupop sikiw ed solpmexE sikiw ed solpmexE .adaugotua samelborp ed oEÅÅAulos moc setneilc so raduja arap sanrexe sikiw racilbup medop erawtfos ed saserpme e erawdrah ed setnacirbaf ,olpmexe rop ,soic²Agen ed oEÅÅAarugifnoc amu mE .odªAetnoc od aunÁtnoc oEÅÅAnetunam e otmemahitrapmoc ,oEÅÅAide ,atircse ,asiuqsep a ecruosdworc ©Á acilbªAp ikiw amu ed ovitejbo o ,otnussa od etnemetnednepedIn .obcin ed sotnussa me sadacof oEÅtse sikiw samugla sam ,soicipªAt ed amga almap amu merboc seralupop slam sikiw sA .lareg otneimchoc ed snif arap sadasa etnemumoc oEÅÅ ocilbªAp ed e sanrexe sikiw sA .acitÁllop ed aiug uo oirjAnoicuf od launam o omoc setnatropmi sotnemucod radepsoph medop mªBmat sikiw ,oEÅÅAarugifnoc atseN .ovitaroprocc otmemaniert uo ossecorp ed oEÅÅAatnemucod ,soirjAnoicuf ed oEÅÅAargent e arap megazidnerpa ed oEÅtseg ed amets
